

August 2026

During my work experience at Northern Power Electronics, I independently completed a client job of soldering and assembling a radio module. This radio module included an Arduino uno board, a USB host shield, a LED display shield and a multiple frequency radio transceiver. This device was needed by the client to interface with a mouth-controlled accessibility device for his disabled son which allowed him to pursue his love for remote controlled cars.

Made by Oliver Ron Andreasen.